JAPANESE KEPT ACCOUNTS

SOME QUEER ENTRIES IN THE CASH BOOK OF THE TEN-DOLLAR CLUB.

The books of the Japanese Ten-Dollar Club have gone in as evidence in the federal court, in the cases of Yonehara and others, charged with conspiracy. The earlier entries, for April and March, show business on a much smaller scale. It was a One-Dollar Club then, and had none of the objects which later caused trouble for its members. In April and May the membership dues were raised to $3.50, and the following translations of the Japanese entries show that in April, a month before the formal change to a society of conspirators, the "business" of the concern was already beginning to have to do with women:
